DETAILED ACTION

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 4-5 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections – 35 U.S.C. 102

(d) the invention was first patented or caused to be patented, or was the subject of an inventor's certificate, by the applicant or his legal representatives or assigns in a foreign country prior to the date of the application for patent in this country on an application for patent or inventor's certificate filed more than twelve months before the filing of the application in the United States.

Claims 4-12 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(d) as being barred by applicant's Japanese Patent 2003-63958 (Makoto et al.).

Makoto et al. teach a method for treating mood disorders comprising administration of theanine in which theanine is contained in food or drugs (meeting the limitations of claims 4-5 and 7; paragraph 0011, 0012 and claims). It is taught that theanine improves the condition of depression among the mood disorders as assessed by the Hamilton scale (further meeting the limitation of claim 5; paragraph 0012 and 0041). Among the conditions to be treated include feelings of guilt, suicide, loss of interest and declined of concentration and attentiveness (psychomotor retardation; meeting the limitations of claims 8-12; paragraph 0013).

Double Patenting

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. A nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting rejection is appropriate where the conflicting claims are not identical, but at least one examined application claim is not patentably distinct from the reference claim(s) because the examined application claim is either anticipated by, or would have been obvious over, the reference claim(s). See, e.g., In re Berg, 140 F.3d 1428, 46 USPQ2d 1226 (Fed. Cir. 1998); In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) or 1.321(d) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent either is shown to be commonly owned with this application, or claims an invention made as a result of activities undertaken within the scope of a joint research agreement.

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 4-12 are provisionally rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 8, 11-14, 16, 22-23 of copending Application No. 10/311,972. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the instant claims are drawn to a method of ameliorating mood disorders comprising administration of theanine while the claims of Application No. 10/311,972 are drawn to a method of suppressing psychological influences which negatively act during working. Although the claims of Application No. 10/311,972 do not specifically recite mood disorders as a psychological influence, it would be obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art that a mood disorder is a type of psychological influence and one would be motivated to treat with theanine.

This is a provisional obviousness-type double patenting rejection because the conflicting claims have not in fact been patented.

Claims 4-12 are provisionally rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims of copending Application No. 10/343,931. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the instant claims are drawn to a method of ameliorating mood disorders comprising administration of theanine while the claims of Application No. 10/343,931 are drawn to a method of ameliorating attention-deficit hyperactivity disorder comprising the administration of theanine. Although the claims of Application No. 10/343, 931 are drawn specifically to attention-deficit hyperactivity disorder, it would be obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art that attention-deficit hyperactivity disorder and mood disorders are both types of psychological disorders and one would be motivated to treat both with theanine.

This is a provisional obviousness-type double patenting rejection because the conflicting claims have not in fact been patented.

Conclusion

No claims are allowed.
